Mr. Brown emphasized to the Board the importance of reviewing the content of the proposed Bylaw revisions, and he recognized the effort of the Governance Committee, chaired by Mayor Longo, that went into drafting such revisions. He asked the Board members to be prepared to ask questions and make comments at the May 15th meeting so that the Board can finalize the recommended revisions.

The Executive Director mentioned that he would be attending a NACWA meeting in Washington, D.C., along with Mayor Starr and Ms. Kelly, to meet with the District’s delegation and talk about District obligations and community concerns. VII. Information Items

1. Internal Audit 2008 1st Quarter Update.

The Executive Director introduced John Wasko, Manager of Internal Audit, to provide the Board with the first quarter Internal Audit Update report. Mr. Wasko advised the Board members that they received three items in their Board packets including 1) a listing of the management responses received in the first quarter of 2008 with a summary of actions to be performed; 2) a listing of audits in progress with the updated 2008 audit plan; and, 3) executive summaries of audit areas with details and recommendations.
Mr. Wasko reported that the hiring practices audit was deferred until the Director of Human Resources position was filled. He also indicated that when a Board Audit Committee is created in accordance with the revised Bylaws, future reports would be presented to that committee.

Mayor Starr asked whether all or some of the construction contracts were being monitored. Mr. Wasko reported that a sampling of the construction contracts were audited based upon performance issues and in conjunction with MBE/WBE subcontractor reviews.

Mayor Starr inquired if Mr. Wasko will be able to use outside contractors to assist with audits. Mr. Wasko responded that he currently has engaged Jefferson Wells to assist with the Easter aeration piping contract and intends to seek authorization to issue a request for proposals to for a range of auditing services, including construction contract audits.

Mr. Bucci added that, as a follow up to Mayor Starr’s interest in internal auditors with fraud certification, a member of Mr. Wasko’s staff, Brian Flanagan, became a certified financial fraud examiner. Mayor Starr inquired about recouping payments made under contracts completed over the past six to eight years that were documented by the Calfee Halter report as contract overruns. Executive Director Ciaccia replied that the District would try to recoup whatever it can legally recoup. He indicated that staff is looking at past contracts, and it is the basis of some of the current lawsuits. Mayor Starr stated that there were firms that specialized in the area of fraud and recouping money on a contingency basis if the payments were improper. He asked that the District consider this course of action. Mr. Wasko responded that the District would consider Mayor Starr’s suggestion, as well as, continue to focus auditing activities to prevent problems that arose from past practices.

Mr. Brown added that the Jefferson Wells report related to the payment of reasonable labor and material costs for a particular contract; however, he believes the District has tightened up the process for change orders and the use of allowances and is now creating a culture and environment where it is not business as usual. The District is now taking a hard line with contractors in making claims under change orders for items that may have historically been paid. This is new position is evidenced by the number of litigation matters in which the District is currently engaged.

Executive Director Ciaccia agreed that the District is going through culture pains right now with the contracting community. However, with respect to price escalation claims, the contracting community knows that if a contract is signed with a certain price for an item that will be the price for the item throughout the term of the contract.
